The Denver Journal of International Law and Policy

is an integral part of the University of Denver's International Legal Studies Program. The purpose of the Program is to prepare students for effective roles in the contemporary interdependent world of business, federal government, and international relations. The faculty includes members of the regular faculty at the University of Denver College of Law, professors from other schools and departments of the University, and several practicing attorneys. The Director of the program is Professor Ved P. Nanda of the College of Law.

In addition to the regular course of study, the International Legal Studies Program makes special provision for internships, externships, and summer study in the United States and abroad. Students may also enroll in a joint degree program with the Graduate School of Business and Public Management or the Graduate School of International Studies, leading to the degrees of M.B.A., M.A., or Ph.D., in addition to the J.D.

Other components of the program include the Denver International Law Society, the Myres S. McDougal Distinguished Lecture in International Law and Policy, the annual regional conference of the American Society of International Law, and the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition.

This cumulative Ten Year Index of the Denver Journal of International Law and Policy provides easy identification of materials in the Journal through numerous indices. Most entries are listed in a topical index, and further made identifiable through the collapsing of all indices in the Subject Matter Index and through collateral entry searches by cross-reference suggestions. Within the Subject Matter Index, a conscious effort has been made to list every entry at least twice in the more than 180 subject headings presented. To further facilitate the identification of major works on a given subject, inclusive page numbers are provided for all entries.
